2016

WELCOME MESSAGE

On behalf of the organizing committee, we welcome all of you to the Joint World Conference on Social Work, Education and Social Development (SWSD) 2016, to be held on June 27-30, 2016, in Seoul, Korea.

We heartily thank your enthusiastic participation and tireless efforts which have paved the way for a successful opening of SWSD 2016. Leading up to the conference, over 2,000 participants pre-registered and 1,500 presentations were submitted, more than any previous conferences. Your collaboration and commitment to our vision and goals have made this possible, and we couldn't have done it without you.

For the conference, under the theme of "Promoting the Dignity and Worth of People," a wide range of stimulating academic programs have been organized to address the most pressing challenges and latest, developing issues that we face. In addition, a comprehensive variety of social programs have been assembled for our participants to enjoy the conference as well as discover the unique charm of Korea.

We hope the conference will be a fruitful and rewarding exchange through to the end and that our proactive discussions on the many subjects related to social work, education and social development lead to advancements and improvements to the quality of life for all.

Finally, we encourage all of you visiting from abroad to immerse yourselves in the culture and attractions that the beautiful city of Seoul has to offer. We will do best to make sure you have a safe and pleasant stay.

We wish you a memorable SWSD 2016 and visit to Korea.

WELCOME MESSAGE

I would like to extend a warm welcome to all Social Workers of the World who have gathered here in such large numbers; Let's Unite and Celebrate our wonderful Social Work Profession!

While issuing this clarion call of unity and mindful celebration, I would like to express my gratitude to our international partner organisations IFSW and ICSW for working together. This proactive joint initiative has helped us to reach this important day of the opening ceremony of the Joint World Conference. I would also like to thank our South Korean Hosts namely all the Korean Social Work and Social Welfare Associations along with the Sponsors for making this World Conference on Social Work, Education and Social Development a reality. Special thanks are due to In Young Han the Coordinator of the International Programme Committee; Prof. Cha, Chair of the Local Organising Committee and his team; Fiona Robertson the World Conference Coordinator and IFSW Treasurer; the International Program Committee, and Sponsors both local and national who have worked so hard along with the International Steering Committee members to bring all these efforts to a fruition.

I welcome all our participants who have flown long distances to join these discussions including the South Korean social workers who I am sure are very excited to have this conference in their country. I wish this conference a great resounding success.

We are assembled here to celebrate our Social Work Profession, to showcase our work that we are doing around the globe, in different countries, in urban and rural contexts, in mountainous regions and the plains, in great cities, towns and in vast rural hinterlands, with the poor, the disadvantaged, marginalized, differently challenged, and those facing gross discrimination and oppression on the theme of "Promoting Dignity and Worth of People" which is the second pillar of our Global Agenda on Social Work and Social Development. We are here to present different perspectives in social work and social development on Promoting Dignity and Worth of People.

The theme is dear to all of us especially as it touches the basic foundational value of social work that we have been taught and continue to teach our students. How we conceptualise and practice it is a challenge specially in the current context of the continuous upheavals of disasters, wars, conflict and discrimination facing our communities and nations. Our greatest challenge is to advocate for a humanistic response that maintains the dignity of all people and recognises their potential and freedom to act regardless of gender, caste, class, age, sexual orientation, disability and cultural differences.

IASSW calls upon all its members to reflect on how social work education can ensure that students and faculty are deeply committed to social transformation which humanises systems and is founded on the twin principles of dignity and worth of human beings. We need to keep reminding ourselves that these are inherent in all human beings and we have to make all efforts to create spaces and environments for all people to live a life of dignity and worth.

WELCOME MESSAGE

Mr. Chairperson
Distinguished Delegates

Let me greet you on behalf of the International Council on Social Welfare (ICSW) and extend my best wishes to you all. I am sure that this Joint World Conference that brings together so many distinguished participants will be a huge success and an important international event. I would like to thank the Local Organising Committee for very impressive work they have done.

ICSW is an old organisation founded in Paris 1928. Interestingly, within two years we will together with our sister organisations International Association of Schools of Work, IASSW and International Federation of Social Workers, IFSW celebrate our 90th birthday.

ICSW is a global, non-governmental organisation which represents national and local organisations in more than 70 countries throughout the world. Our member organisations in their turn represent tens of thousands of community organisations actively involved in programmes to promote social welfare, social development and social justice. Our members are independent civil society organisations working in their own communities to improve human welfare, particularly of vulnerable social groups.

A formal consultative status that ICSW has with the United Nations Economic and Social Council, as well as with UNICEF, UNESCO, WHO and other specialised agencies of the UN allows ICSW to present our views to the global audience, advancing progressive social policy we are standing for.

Since 2010, ICSW together with the IASSW and the IFSW has been working on implementation of the Global Agenda which we consider an important platform to address pressing social issues that our three organisations have singled out as priorities for action. The Global Agenda has proved its validity and usefulness, and we do hope that the second report on the Global Agenda that has been jointly produced is well received by the participants of this conference.

I am convinced that our joint efforts during this Conference and beyond will move the Agenda forward. The topic for our discussions—dignity of the human being—is very much what ICSW has been standing for during all these years. I am looking forward to continue our joint work in this regard, seeking answers to critical and profound questions.

Once again I would like to thank the Korean National Council on Social Welfare, Korean Association of Social Workers, Korean Council on Social Welfare Education and Seoul Welfare Foundation for organising this World Conference. And best wishes to you all.

WELCOME MESSAGE

Dear Friends

It is with great pleasure that IFSW joins with our colleagues in IASSW and ICSW in this biennial World Conference on Social Work and Social Development focusing on the Dignity and Respect for all people. This theme is at the heart of social work principles and values and is the foundation on which we build our practice.

The event will bring together people who use social work services, researchers, teachers and those who work in the huge variety of social work services around the world. There are so many ways that we can use our skills, knowledge and expertise and so much we need to learn from each other about 'what works' that we are very grateful to our colleagues from South Korea for this wonderful opportunity offered through this conference.

The challenge that we all face is moving from the short term interventions so favoured by politicians to long term investment in social development. Many of us work with disasters and in the recovery in the aftermath of trauma and tragedy. This may be on a personal level after a child has been abused, a serious sexual assault, a devastating mental illness, an accident that results in severe disability or at a macro level where there has been war, famine, drought or an earthquake. We work with people forced into migration who suffer the effects of being displaced. Sometimes we work with individuals and their families, sometimes with whole communities.

Come and join us in Seoul in 2016, come and share what has worked for you and the people with whom you work – help us learn how to improve our practice and our services.

We look forward to meeting you in June.

President, International Federation of Social Workers

WELCOME MESSAGE

It is a great honor and privilege for me to host this world congress with such distinguished scholars, social work practitioners, and agency leaders in Seoul. I sincerely welcome my dear colleagues from around the world to our small, far east country of Korea. I hope you have time to visit the DMZ to see the scar of the only divided country in the world.

We are living in a world of terror, hate crime, and war. In this backdrop and against these challenges, we have been working in the social work field to maintain human dignity and promote social protection and security. The theme of this conference is to promoting the dignity and worth of people and we are gathered together to make world a better place.

I hope the various symposiums are meaningful and productive so that we can take with us the results to adapt at home. Global issues such as poverty, sex trafficking, disasters, trauma, AIDS, and mental health issues will be examined and discussed in depth. Also, the issue of refugees, who are fleeing from strife around the world, is an issue that must be addressed with priority through collective efforts. I appreciate educators and practitioners who share their research results and field experiences so that we continue international partnership and collaboration.

As the chair of IPC, I was thoroughly impressed with the tripartite presidents and their leadership, cooperation, and communication.

Finally, I would also like to express my deep appreciation to the global agenda team for their endless efforts to make these urgent global issues known to the world.

Chair of the Local Program Committee

CONGRATULATORY MESSAGE

Greetings! I am Wonsoo Park, Mayor of Seoul. First of all, on behalf of the 10 million citizens of Seoul, I would like to welcome all of the social welfare workers, professors, researchers, and representatives of social welfare institutions to Seoul, and I would like to thank all of you for traveling from around the world to attend the Joint World Conference on Social Work, Education, and Social Development 2016 in Seoul.

Social welfare is work that gives hope to the global village, and all of you are experts on creating a more equal and better society and future for the citizens of the global village. I am delighted that this meaningful conference is being held in Seoul, and I hope that all of the participants of this conference can share and exchange each other's experiences and knowledge. I promise that the Seoul Metropolitan Government will do our best to make your stay in Seoul fruitful and memorable.

In the Seoul Metropolitan Government, we believe that welfare is a natural right for all citizens and that welfare services should put the needs of the citizens first. Through collaborative governance, we are coming up with a Seoul Welfare Model. I ask for your interest in and support for the Seoul Welfare Model, as well as your invaluable advice.

Last but not least, I would like to thank the International Council on Social Welfare (ICSW), the International Federation of Social Workers (IFSW), the International Association Schools Social Work (IASSW), and all of the organizers for making this meaningful event possible. Thank you.

Best regards,

Wonsoo Park
Mayor of Seoul

Global Agenda for Social Work and Social Development

Second Report, Published June 2016, Seoul, Korea

PROMOTING THE DIGNITY AND WORTH OF PEOPLES

Promoting The Dignity And Worth Of Peoples is the second of a series of four reports on The Global Agenda for Social Work and Social Development. It is being launched at the 2016 World Conference on Social Work and Social Development in Seoul Korea by The International Association of Schools of Social Work (IASSW), The International Council on Social Welfare (ICSW) and The International Federation of Social Workers (IFSW).

Respect for 'the dignity and worth of peoples' is the second pillar of The Global Agenda for Social Work and Social Development. The concept is at the heart not only of professional ethical codes but also of international conventions and statements on human rights and peaceful coexistence. These aspirational statements aim to shape environments in which people can live without fear, give expression to their identity and personality as they wish, whilst showing respect to others, care for their family and community members, practice their beliefs and religions, participate in and shape their communities through social as well as political engagement and have access to the resources needed for a dignified and secure life.

The report presents the findings of 5 Regional Observatories that have examined social work and social development practice related to this second pillar of The Global Agenda for Social Work and Social Development. These observations are set in the context of the social, political and economic realities of 2014-16.

A clear message from each of the regional reports is that sustainable development is best achieved by people and professionals working together with mutual respect: 'co-construction' of solutions to difficult issues involving those affected, whether by community, family or personal trauma, calamity, disaster or mistreatment. Those contributing to the Regional Observatory processes, reflecting wider experience, show that dignity and worth are respected when people have self-determination and influence over their own futures.
